NEWS

New: Senior Hannah Davis Exploring What Makes America Great (and Not So Great)

Senior Hannah Davis was accepted to participate alongside a small group of Catlin Gabel, De La Salle North, and Oregon City High School students in Catlin Gabel's Winterim, where she helped start a national dialogue with America's youth around "What makes America great (and not so great)?" to address concerns about extreme political polarization. Her team curated more than 200 video responses to this question from high school students around the country, analyzed the responses, and from the effort, are building a guide for high schools to engage, facilitate, and discuss "hot" topics. Oregon Public Broadcasting's radio program, "Think Out Loud," took interest in the project and made it the focus of their show on March 23, 2017. You can listen to the show here: <http://www.opb.org/radio/programs/thinkoutloud/segment/portland-youth-tackle-political-polarization-with-national-dialogue-project/>.
