SUMMARY

The School Board established the performance audit function at Portland Public Schools (PPS) to help improve the accountability and performance of the school district. The district performance auditor pursues these goals by conducting independent audits and analysis of district programs and functions in accordance with government auditing standards. This report provides a comprehensive overview of the performance audits conducted since January 2007 and summarizes the status of all audit recommendations.

Over the past 4 and half years, the district performance auditor issued seven audits on a variety of topics and made 50 recommendations to improve conditions identified in the audit reports. As shown in the accompanying table, the district addressed 94 percent of the recommendations - 31 (62%) were implemented and 16 (32%) are in process of implementation. Only three recommendations have not been implemented.

Significant changes in response to audit recommendations

Some of the most significant changes made by the district in response to performance audit recommendations include the following:

- Increased instructional time. New 90 minute block schedules at high schools; standardized bell schedules at high schools and K8; increased the student day at K8 schools by 15 minutes; eliminated union contract language that limited the length of the student day.

- Improved management of school building maintenance. Upgraded maintenance management software; consolidated several labor trade shops and increased generalist work force; established maintenance standards for major equipment; developed performance measures for each labor craft
- Established new teacher evaluation system. District and teacher union agreed to implement a revised teacher evaluation system in the 2011-12 school year.
- Increased charter school accountability. Developed clear requirements for charter school annual reporting; instituted a penalty when charter schools are late in providing required financial and performance data
- Moved to a common school calendar. District implementing a single, common quarter calendar for all schools and grade levels in 2011-12.

Remaining opportunities for improvement

There are also some remaining opportunities to more fully address some significant audit findings including:

- Additional effort to expand teacher work-day and increase work load flexibility: The district should continue to negotiate changes in the teacher contract that will increase annual school days and the length of the teacher work-day.
- Actions to improve the effectiveness of after-school tutoring: Pursue waiver of federal rules that reduce the effectiveness of after-school tutoring
- Implement ELL improvement plans: The district needs to transition from planning to implementation of ELL improvement initiatives.

Opportunities to Increase the Amount and Quality of Instructional Time

September 2007

Summary of Audit Results

A sufficient amount of well-used instructional time is a critical element in improving student achievement. However, Portland Public Schools provided fewer hours of annual instruction time than other large Oregon districts in 2005-06. Several PPS high schools did not meet State requirements for instructional hours and Portland high school seniors lost over three weeks of instruction due to early dismissal for graduation. Compared to other states, 35 states require over 180 days of instructional annually but PPS provides only 172 days. The audit found opportunities to 1) improve compliance with State instructional time requirements, 2) increase the number of instructional hours provided to students, and 3) use available hours more effectively.

Effort Needed to Improve the Capability of School Facility
 Maintenance Services
 March 2008

Summary of Audit Results

The PPS Facility Maintenance department lacked the capacity to conduct an effective and efficient building maintenance program. The department was faced with high and growing workload demands, old buildings and equipment, a demoralized work staff, and incomplete management systems and practices. Most of these conditions were caused by significant budget cuts over the past two decades and the failure to adjust to a changed staffing and funding environment. Consequently, the district does not protect taxpayer investments in capital assets and students and teachers work in environments that are not sufficiently safe and healthy.

Recommendation	Status	PPS actions

IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/> NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Tririga maintenance management software was upgraded. New features include data entry by work crews, automated preventive maintenance work orders, better work order cost data, and ability to determine maintenance cost per building.</li> </ul>
2. Review key performance measures to determine if current measures are useful to management and relevant for decision makers.	IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/> NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Developed key performance measures by labor craft and are routinely reviewed for relevance to mission, goals, and objectives. # Performance Management: Implementation Status of Employee Evaluation Systems

November 2008

Summary of Audit Results

My review of the district's progress in implementing various employee evaluation tools found significant progress in assessing employee performance. Overall, 82 percent of the 4,150 employees that were due evaluations in 2007-08 received a performance appraisal. However, not all employee groups receive evaluations at the same rate - over 90 percent of teachers were evaluated but only 38 percent of principals and administrators received annual evaluations. However, the teacher evaluation tool has not been modified in 28 years and is missing many elements of more progressive teacher evaluation practices.

Recommendation	Status	PPS actions
1. Increase compliance with annual evaluation completion milestones.	IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/> NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Made progress in the number and percent of employees evaluated each year. Very good compliance for teachers, nutrition service workers, and maintenance, bus drivers, and mechanics. Non-represented employees and building administrator evaluations still need improved compliance with the number and timeliness of evaluations.</li> </ul>
2. Expand the availability of online, paperless evaluation forms and processes.	IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/> NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Each year more evaluations can be performed using on-line tools. Portland Public Charter Schools:
An Assessment of Performance and Impacts
March 2009

Summary of Audit Results

A comprehensive study of the performance and impact of the seven public charter schools operating in the PPS district in 2007-08 identified the following conditions:

- Charter school enrollment grew significantly over an 8 year period - 66 students to over 1,080
- Portland charter schools students are much less likely to be low-income, minority, or English language learners
- Charter school success in improving student achievement is mixed. Schools with elementary age students do as well or better than comparable PPS schools but students in middle school grades perform below PPS students in comparable schools
- Portland charters have comparable attendance rates, teacher/student ratios, and class sizes as PPS schools
- Lack of timely financial reports inhibits the assessment of charter school financial stability
- Little evidence of innovation transfer from charters to public PPS schools
- Charter school parents, staff, and students are highly satisfied
- Charter school student academic achievement is difficult to assess due to the lack of specific, measurable charter contract goals and insufficient annual reporting
- Possible adverse enrollment impact for some neighborhood PPS schools
- Opportunities exist to improve PPS oversight of charter schools to improve accountability and performance

Benefits and Costs of Multiple School Calendars at the Portland Public Schools

September 2009

Summary of Audit Results

During the 2008-09 school year, schools in the PPS district followed three separate school calendars (semester, quarter, and “year-round”) and a variety of departures from these calendars such as different start and dismissal times. My audit found that while there are some benefits to the allowed calendar variations, multiple calendars and schedules used by schools result in higher transportation costs, reduced nutrition revenues, and more administrative burden. More importantly, many of the deviations from standard calendars reduced the amount of instructional time provided to students. Compared to other Oregon school districts, PPS offered considerably more flexibility to schools to establish unique and customized calendars and schedules.

Recommendation	Status	PPS actions
1. Discontinue the calendar waiver and contract exception process.	IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>District believes that retaining the option to grant waivers and exceptions to school schedules and calendars provides needed flexibility to the operation of individual schools</li> <li>Waivers and exceptions are intended to help improve student achievement and are not granted if they increase costs or impact negatively on instructional hours</li> </ul>

Supplemental Educational Services: Overall Compliance with Requirements but Opportunities Exist to Improve Effectiveness

February 2010

Summary of Audit Results

The district provides Supplemental Education Services (SES) in accordance with the federal No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) to help improve the academic achievement of low-income students by providing after-school tutoring. The audit found that the district administers the program in compliance with federal requirements but private tutors demonstrated mixed compliance with contract provisions. In addition, we found that SES tutoring has a very modest measurable impact on improving the academic achievement of participating students. SES tutoring could have a more positive impact on improving student achievement if tutoring sessions were delivered to students with significant academic deficits, in small groups, and with a sufficient duration. These changes would require waivers of some federal program requirements and changes in existing contracts with providers.

Recommendation	Status	PPS actions
1. To increase participation, place SES information on the PPS website so that parents and other interested parties have more access to information on tutoring services offered by providers.	IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/> NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Updated PPS SES webpage to include the current SES application packet in six different languages</li> <li>New webpage also includes information on the history of SES service delivery at PPS</li> </ul>
2. Make more effort to give SES providers additional information on the educational needs of SES students that have special education needs so that providers can tailor services and make accommodations to meet special needs.	IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/> NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Modified the SES Provider Selection Form that is approved by parents that PPS will share pertinent academic information with providers such as teacher names, test scores, attendance, and IEP information to help the provider to tailor tutoring services to student needs.</li> </ul>

7. Clarify in provider agreements the specific types of activities that can be billed by providers in provision of SES services. More rigorous review of provider invoices should also help identify overcharges and billings for unallowable services.	IMPLEMENTED <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>          IN PROGRESS <input type="checkbox"/>          NOT IMPLEMENTED <input type="checkbox"/>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Modified contract language in tutorial provider agreements to be more specific about what services are allowed to be billed</li> <li>• New software will not allow provider bills for amounts that exceed the annual cap amount and will ensure students are only enrolled in one tutoring program</li> </ul>

(Supplemental Educational Services: Overall Compliance but Opportunities Exist to Improve Effectiveness, continued)

8. Encourage providers to increase the number of hours of tutoring instruction to at least 40 hours each year and provide Reading tutoring using one-on-one instruction and Math tutoring small groups not exceeding 5 students to one tutor. # English Language Learners: Action Needed to Improve Program Compliance and Performance

October 2010

Summary of Audit Results

PPS has been out of compliance with federal and state rules governing the provision of services to English Language Learners for 13 of the past 17 years - 80 percent of the time between 1994 and 2010. The district has had recurring problems delivering English language proficiency instruction, providing ELL student access to core academic classes, and identifying eligible students. Additionally, the district has had only modest success helping students achieve English language proficiency and in closing the achievement gap between ELL and non-ELL students. PPS has not made a strong commitment to improve ELL instruction nor implemented rigorous methods to monitor performance and strengthen accountability for results. The district needs to develop clear and consistent guidance to schools and improve collaboration in the delivery of ELL services.

METHODOLOGY

According to PPS Board Policy 1.60.040-P that established the District Performance Auditor, the auditor is required to follow-up on audit recommendations as practical to determine if responsible officials are implementing corrective action. To accomplish this follow-up the auditor may request periodic status reports from audited entities regarding the actions taken to address reported deficiencies and audit recommendations.

To obtain information on the status of the implementation of audit recommendations, a request for information is sent to responsible officials six months after the initial release of the audit report. The request for information asks for the current implementation status of each recommendation contained in the audit report to determine if the recommendation has been:

IMPLEMENTED, or is
IN PROGRESS, or is NOT IMPLEMENTED.

In addition, program officials are asked to provide supporting documentation for the actions taken to address the recommendations. The supporting documentation generally consists of written policies and procedures, statistics and spreadsheet data, board resolutions and policies, and official reports. Additional support is obtained through oral testimony and interviews.

The auditor also asks program officials to update the status of the initial 6 month reports every year or two so that the auditor can maintain a current record of the progress toward implementation of recommendations. The auditor does not perform additional audit work to verify or confirm testimony or supporting documentation provided by program officials.
