PURPOSE

Our remote work guidelines are an opportunity to create and support a culture open to positive, collaborative and transformational change where employees thrive. The COVID pandemic encouraged us to be adaptive and flexible, demonstrated our ability to be highly productive while working remotely, and reshaped the way we engaged, both virtually and in-person, with one another. We believe that, through thoughtfully applying the lessons from these experiences, we can work together to offer flexibility in how and where we do our work while excelling at delivering on our mission and vision for our students.

Our students have told us repeatedly that what they most value is a reliable and consistent adult presence throughout Portland Public Schools. We also know that in-person contact fosters additional connection and creates opportunities for relationship-building with students and staff in ways that cannot be fully replaced by a video or phone call. So regardless of role, all of us must provide excellent service and support for our students, families, and each other and be able to have regular contact with our teams and our schools.

At the core of our mission, we must deliver exceptional central services to our schools, students, and families. We believe that student achievement can be accelerated when schools are supported by central services that are performed reliably and accurately, convey trust and confidence through knowledge of products and services, communicate caring and individualized attention, and provide help willingly and promptly. As we expand our flexible work opportunities, it is imperative that we develop and adhere to a set of shared customer service expectations that our school-based leaders, staff, and community understand and for which they feel the positive impact.

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

The purpose of this playbook is to share expectations for PPS' flexible remote work model. This guide provides insight, a community of practice, expectations, and the ins and outs of the flexible remote work model at Portland Public Schools.

ONGOING FLEXIBLE REMOTE WORK OPTIONS & EXPECTATIONS

Flexible remote criteria

There are both team and individual commitments needed to make remote work options successful. Central Office departments must ensure physical presence of staff and service coverage during regular operating hours. Central office staff must be able to have regular in-person contact with their teams and our school communities as requested by their supervisor or district leadership.

Please note: at this time, PPS is not administratively designed to support employees working a hybrid schedule who reside outside of the Portland-Salem-Vancouver metropolitan area, and full-time remote work is allowable only for employees who reside within the Portland-Salem metropolitan area.

Flexible remote work eligibility

To be eligible, employees must:

1. Work in a position eligible for remote work.
2. Discuss and develop a plan with your supervisor.
3. Understand and agree to the remote work requirements outlined in these guidelines and complete this agreement (located in Appendix A).

District Customer Service Expectations

As a central office, we exist to support our schools and community. In order to best do this, we must provide excellent customer service that enables our school communities to focus on their critical work - supporting our students and accelerating student outcomes. As a central office team, we are committing to some foundational, shared service expectations.

Our foundational customer service expectations ensure that we -

- Perform reliably and accurately
- Convey trust and confidence through our knowledge of products and services
- Provide services with an equity lens and in alignment with our RESJ beliefs
- Communicate caring and individualized attention
- Provide help willingly and promptly
- Prioritize responding to school-based staff

Our shared customer service expectations are that -

- Every central office work space includes business hours contact information
- Respond promptly to communications
- Calendars reflect daily working location

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

- Calendars are open to teams/supervisors to see the title and invite list
- Office phones are forwarded or voicemails are checked daily when staff is working remotely
- Out of office message is placed on email and voicemail when appropriate and directs staff who to contact during your absence (see guidance and templates here).

Flexible Work Options

Senior leaders in each office considered a variety of factors in determining the level of eligibility for flexible work for each role. Each position is unique and requires careful consideration of factors, such as, but not limited to, if the role provided direct support to students, required access to tools, equipment or other requirements that are located on-site, type of job responsibilities, etc. Employees in positions that are eligible for flexible or remote work are not required to work remotely; employees may choose to work from the central office location.

Below are the categories of flexible work:

Eligibility Definitions
Full-Time Remote Work Eligible	Eligible for Full-Time, 5 days a week remote work. Note: Washington residents in full-time remote work eligible positions are required to physically work from an Oregon office one day per week.
Hybrid Remote Work	Eligible for a regular remote work schedule, up to 3 days of remote work per week, determine schedule with advanced consultation with supervisor.
Ad-Hoc Remote Work	Eligible for up to 8 hours per work week, on an ad hoc basis, with advance consultation with supervisor; no regular remote work schedule.
Direct School Support	No regular remote work schedule because role is expected to provide direct school-based support while schools are in session; may work remote on days when school is not in session (any remote work is agreed upon in advance and at supervisor discretion)
Not Eligible	Not eligible for remote work

Remote work expectations

- PPS provides each employee with an on-site work space and tools/equipment. Employees who choose to, and are approved, have a work from home schedule are responsible for their own home equipment. PPS does not supply wi-fi, furniture, monitors, ergonomic reviews, etc., for home offices.
- Delivering on service level commitments from a remote work location means employees are accessible and productively engaged during scheduled work hours.

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

- While some employees are eligible for full-time remote work, in practice, some managers may be establishing hybrid work schedules with staff to ensure a physical presence in their department Monday through Friday.
- Every PPS staff member must be available for any in-person standing or ad hoc staff meeting called by their manager.
- Comply with all PPS rules, policies, practices and instructions that would apply if you were working onsite at a PPS location.
- Follow your schedule, take required breaks and lunch, and obtain prior approval for any overtime before it's worked.
- Protect confidential information at all times, including student and employee data. PPS files may not be maintained or stored at home offices or on personal computers or equipment.
- On approved remote work days, employees who encounter power, internet, or other technical difficulties are expected to make alternate work location arrangements, come on-site to complete their work, or request time off.
- Ensure arrangements are made for regular dependent care during all work hours, understanding that remote work is not a substitute for dependent care. Remaining engaged in work activities is not consistent with simultaneously caring for dependents.
- Remain flexible to adjusting schedules when work and personal needs shift. You may be called in to your work-site on short notice for unplanned or unexpected circumstances.
- Maintain a safe and secure work environment at all times.
- Report work-related injuries to your manager and Risk Management as soon as practicable.
- Remote work is not a replacement or alternative to taking sick leave or vacation. Being fully engaged in work activities during your work hours is the consistent expectation of the remote work option. If you are too ill to work from home, use your sick time for rest, recovery, and getting medical care. Vacation time is an important opportunity to rest and recharge, and you are encouraged to take your vacation time.

Additional supervisor information

- Supervisors may not require an employee to work from home.
- Should a supervisor believe a position or classification's work from home eligibility level be changed, they must first discuss the proposed eligibility change with their leader and SLT member. The SLT member will discuss with Human Resources to determine if the eligibility level can be changed. Employees may not work under a different eligibility category than initially designated until approved by Human Resources.

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

- Employees are not permitted to work remotely more than their classification eligibility allows for and supervisors do not have authority to approve these requests or changes. If an employee experiencing a health or medical issue requests remote work more than their classification eligibility allows, supervisors must refer the employee to the ADA process which is available on the Human Resources website.
- From time-to-time, employees may request to work from home on an ad hoc basis regardless of their standard remote work eligibility to deal with personal issues that may not be managed at other times, such as letting the furnace repair person in the house. Supervisors are encouraged to use their best judgment when reviewing these requests - they should be made in advance and the employee should still be expected to participate in all required meetings.
- Encourage vacation. Flexible remote work allows employees to work from a location they choose - it is not intended to prevent employees from taking vacation time. Employees should be encouraged to take vacation time free of any work expectations.
- Changes in an employee's regular remote work schedule may be made by mutual agreement. Should situations arise where the employee's work has shifted and the number of days remote work may need to be reduced, or if for any other reason a supervisor feels a remote work schedule needs to stop, they must contact their HR Employee & Labor Relations partner to discuss the situation.

FOCUS ON RELATIONSHIPS: Building and maintaining relationships is important for collaboration across distance.

Get Talking

From having lunch together to saying hello in the hallways, from playing cards in the breakroom to conducting a walking meeting - many people find it easier to connect socially with their peers when working at the office.

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

In a flexible work environment, connecting with each other and building relationships is more important than ever. A little rapport goes a long way. Create opportunities to get to know your distributed teammates just like you would if they sat in the next cube over.

- Warm Welcome - Start your meetings with an open-ended, personal question. Try “what did you do this weekend?” (You’ll get more than asking “how was your weekend”).
- Consider creating a group chat that is always “on” for work-related questions or fun, social messages.
- Share a virtual meal over video conferencing.
- Connect with an open-ended, personal question. Try “what did you do this weekend?” (You’ll get more than asking “how was your weekend”).
- Consider creating a group chat that is always “on” for work-related questions or fun, social messages.
- Share a virtual meal over video conferencing.
- Say hi! Check in on a teammate with an encouraging message, project-relevant news article, or funny photo - just because! Pick up the phone, send an email or a Gchat to a colleague and ask about their day, weekend plans, etc.
- Theme days - as a group select a theme and wear something to inspire joy all day
- Show and tell - select a photo taken that week and describe what is special about the photo
- Optimistic closure - round robin style, individuals provide kudos for another employee (may or may not be in the same meeting)

Appreciate Differences

Cultural differences influence how people like to be visible or receive recognition, the way people act, and how people interpret the actions of others - but we’re not always aware of how culture influences behavior, experiences, or workstyle.

- Reflect: Some behaviors required for flexible work aren’t comfortable for various cultural identities, norms, or personalities.
- Teach a teammate something new about your culture (e.g., words in a new language, holidays/cultural traditions).
- Use meetings to discuss how distributed colleagues can be heard, supported, and included.

Be Present

Some engagement signals are lost when working together virtually, particularly when we mute the microphone or focus intently on our laptops. Be sure to:

- Unmute your microphone and validate contributions from others. A head nod, “mmhmm”, or “yeah, good idea” will do it!

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

- Ensure you're clearly visible on the video screen by zooming in, making eye contact, and expressing your reactions noticeably.

BEST PRACTICES: Having a plan for communication, structures, and norms is critical for virtual & hybrid teams.

Adapted from "Distributed Work @Google Playbooks"

Reach Out

It can be hard for teammates in other locations to be heard, as they often have to overcome barriers to jump in and share. You can help create the space for them to speak up.

- Ask for input from the most isolated meeting participant any time the meeting breaks into a discussion.
- If you see someone trying to enter the conversation, stop and invite their comments.

Set Team Norms

Norms set clear expectations for how you work together with your team. But they're often assumed rather than explicitly stated, leaving opportunities for confusion.

- Discuss, establish and document communication and decision making norms with your colleagues (e.g., answering emails/pings off-hours, how often will you stay in touch, information-sharing across time zones).
- Be sure to communicate frequently and openly. When remote team colleagues can count on being able to quickly receive the information that they need to, this improves the trust among team members and can aid in the efficient transfer of key, task-relevant knowledge.

The following are standard recommended meeting norms as well as suggestions to support meetings where participants may be working on-site or from a remote location.

- End meetings 5 minutes early to allow for "passing time"
- Invite appropriate stakeholders - be mindful of everyone's time, if someone is invited in order to "inform" some individuals - think of other methods for informing them.
- Commit to being present and participating. Stay engaged and focused. Avoid reading and responding to emails or multitasking. Participants may need a bio-break, have a pet that unexpectedly jumps on screen, or need a drink of water during a meeting - that's okay, we are all human and have personal needs that need attending briefly!
- Include a Google Hangout or Zoom link for all meetings to accommodate those working remotely. If all participants are expected to attend the meeting in person, ensure this is clearly communicated well in advance.

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

Match the Comms Channel to the Need

Video is best for more sensitive or detailed discussions, while a quick message is great for check-ins or clarifying simple matters. Don't default to a message when a richer format is warranted; conversely, don't force a formal video meeting when an email is enough.

Make the Most of Meetings

Fewer opportunities to connect necessitate good meeting hygiene. Set meeting agendas in advance, kick off meetings by recapping where things left off previously, and be mindful of timing to avoid ending a meeting without getting through key agenda items.

Don't Wait for a Formal Meeting if you Don't Need to Physical distance can lead some people to avoid communicating as much as they need to. If something comes up that you'd normally ask an in-person colleague about right away, don't let physical distance stop you; message or call your colleague to keep progress moving. When remote team members can count on being able to quickly receive information they need, trust improves more quickly.

Prioritize Your Well-being

Focus on your well-being while working from home by setting up a comfortable office space to physically separate your work and home life; setting limits on your workday so that you don't accidentally work more hours than normal; achieving your stand goal by getting up at least every hour. Mindfulness is another useful tool to increase well-being and focus, while relieving stress.

Communication between employees & supervisors

Employees – communicate up

- Share your accomplishments
- Ask for help when you hit a roadblock
- Communicate, communicate, communicate
- Request clarity when needed
- What do you need to be successful?
- Review goals and project timelines and action items, ensure you are on track
- Ask for feedback

Supervisors – set clear expectations

- Define and communicate team norms and expectations
- Clarify Customer Service Expectations (CSEs), response times and availability
- How to communicate with you - what's the best way to reach you? Chat, call, text, email

PPS Employee Remote Work Guidelines

- Verify priorities for employees
- Provide a minimum of 48 hours notice if you must request an employee be onsite during their regularly scheduled remote work day

It is important to remember, as we continue to navigate the evolving COVID-19 pandemic/endemic, that employees have had varying experiences over the last few years. Many employees have experienced, and may continue to experience, heightened anxiety, uncertainty, and increased stress during this time.

As leaders, it is our responsibility to have empathy and model a culture that is open to positive, collaborative and transformational change where employees feel supported and thrive.

Trauma Informed Oregon has developed a number of resources for leaders as they support their employees in returning to the workplace. A few we would like to call your attention to are:

Services include 24-hour crisis help, confidential counseling (up to 5 free sessions per situation, per year), and childcare and eldercare referrals.
